CITIZENS MEET

And Pledge Themselves to Aid in Enforcing the Law.

The meeting of the Citizens' League at the court house last Friday was attended by people from all parts of the county and the court house was crowded notwithstanding the bad weather.

Addresses were made by Judge S. S. Taulbee, McGuire, A. H. Patton, Wm. M. Beckner, of Winchester, after which resolutions were passed through the audience with the following pledge printed thereon:

The undersigned, being a citizen of Breathitt county, Ky., and desirous of co-operating with all other good citizens of Breathitt county in stamping out all manner of violations of law, and especially the sale of liquor, and to further insure peace and good order, do hereby pledge myself to the good citizens of Breathitt county and to the officers of the law to divulge to the officers of the law any and all information I have or may obtain, either directly or indirectly, that will lead to the prosecution and conviction of all persons for all forms of violations of law in Breathitt county, and I promise to be specially vigilant in obtaining such information against the sale of liquor, carrying pistols, and shooting on the public highway or in the town of Jackson.

Witness my hand this.....day of.....1908.

which were signed by several hundred persons. Any one wishing to sign this pledge can cut this out and sign and mail to Rev. Z. J. Edge, Secretary, Jackson, Ky.

The following resolutions of the Citizens' League, of Jackson, Ky., were unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, the great natural resources of Eastern Kentucky make it one of the most promising fields for investment in the South, and whereas, the people beyond its borders have very erroneous views concerning conditions in that section of the State, and whereas, we are in sympathy with the dominant forces of that region in favor of civic betterment, and whereas, we appreciate the importance of united action on the part of all the counties in Eastern Kentucky to assure the outside world that law and order now prevail, and will be maintained and that all who may come to Eastern Kentucky or who may invest their money there will be protected and find hearty welcome, now, therefore, with a view to establishing confidence and taking counsel together concerning the common weal, be it resolved:

"1. That a convention of the counties of Eastern Kentucky, being the counties lying east of Mason, Fleming and Bath in the Ninth Congressional District, all the counties in the Tenth Congressional District, all the counties lying on the east of Madison, Garrard and Lincoln, in the Eighth Congressional District, and all the counties lying east of the Knoxville branch of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, be called and held in Jackson on the first Wednesday in May, 1909, at twelve o'clock M., to consider the best means of preserving law and order, of satisfying capital that it will find welcome and protection, of advancing the interests of religion and education, of improving the public highways, of utilizing the water powers, of improving agricultural conditions, and of making it known to the world that this section is inhabited by descendants of the best Anglo-Saxon and Huguenot blood that came to America, and that the only drawbacks to their development and progress have been the lack of transportation facilities, of educational advantages, and of capital with which to make available the vast natural resources with which God has blessed them.

"2. That the County Judges of said counties be and are hereby requested to appoint at least five delegates from among their constituents without respect to politics, who will be most likely to take an interest in the purposes of said convention.

"3. That the chairman of this meeting appoint an executive committee of seven suitable persons, whose duty it shall be to promote said convention and to look after and arrange all the details of same, with plenary powers in the premises."

Take Care of Your Teeth.

Even with the best care it is sometimes not possible, owing to the state of one's health and what not, to prevent a slight discoloration from forming upon the teeth. A professor of dentistry taught me the following method of discolorizing them. Try it; you will find it wonderful.

A tiny pledget of absorbent cotton upon the point of a toothpick is dipped into tincture of iodine; this is carefully run over and around each tooth, avoiding the gum as much as possible; a second pledget, similarly prepared, is then dipped in pure alcohol, and run over the iodined teeth. The result must be seen to be appreciated.

It is a great mistake to use cheap toothpastes. They are coarse and gritty, and contain nothing to ensure alkalinity of the mouth. It is much better to have one's tooth powder prepared at a reliable chemist, and the following formula was given to me by a New York dentist: Sodium bicarbonate, 1 dram; magnesium bicarbonate, 1 dram; powdered orris root, 1 dram; precipitated chalk, 2 ounces; menthol 5 grains. Flavor with oil of wintergreen.

A mild antiseptic wash should follow the use of the powder; for this purpose listerine, with eucalyptus and glyco-thymoline, are good. They must be diluted.

Dentists also have assured me that if we use bicarbonate of soda (chemically pure) upon our teeth every day, rubbing it well into the spaces, they would be forced to close their offices.—The January Delineator.

Be Careful What You Say.

In speaking of a person's faults, Pray don't forget your own; Remember those with homes of glass.

Should seldom throw a stone; If we have nothing else to do But talk of those who sin,

'Tis better we commence at home, And from that point begin. We have no right to judge a man Until he's fairly tried;

Should we not like his company, We know the world is wide. Some may have faults—and who has not?

The old as well as young, Perhaps we may, for ought we know.

Have fifty to their one. I'll tell you of a better plan You'll find it works full well, To try my own defects to cure Before of others tell.

And though I sometimes hope to be No worse than some I know, My own shortcomings bid me let The faults of others go.

Then let us all when we commence To slander friends or foe, Think of the harm one word would do.

To those we little know. Remember, curses, sometimes like Our chickens, "roost at home." Don't speak of others' faults until We have none of our own.
